It appears to me that everything and the only thing that the Justice Department ever has said about MICROSOFT is always negative, demeaning, condescending and always a put down. Why is that? Certainly some one in the whole US Government must believe that maybe just once that have done some good.

You know businesses are like a beautiful, tender, wholesome, lovely, kind women and they should be cared for and nurtured. Have you ever done anything to help Microsoft or Bill Gates or to help businesses?

Possibly you'd like to take another point of view for a few moments! Bill Gates has single handedly built up, developed and most importantly STANDARDIZED this industry. It still needs a lot of work but think of how many light years ahead the USA and the world are because of the leadership and competition he has offer to the industry.

Several times I have emailed to Microsoft and to Bill Gates, to no avail, (but I'm not going to give up), requesting an audience to project my personally developed pro forma ideas which would negate your entire 'bullying' effort towards Bill Gates and Microsoft.

You should know that none of us are perfect but BG and MS have done so much for this country that he should be given the Medal of Honor. Well that is my point of view for what its worth. Thank you for taking the time to present my opinionated ideas.

All the Best,
